

Tonya Cannariato, Speculative Fiction Author

Twitter: @tmycann

Website: <http://www.tmycann.com/>

Facebook: <https://www.facebook.com/TonyaCannariato>

A voracious reader since she was a toddler, and an ordained spiritualist, Tonya Cannariato has now presided over the marriage of her love of reading and her love of writing. She's lived a nomadic life, following first her parents in their Foreign Service career through Africa, Europe, and Asia, and then her own nose criss-crossing America as she's gotten old enough to make those choices for herself. She's currently based in Milwaukee with her three loves: her husband and two Siberian Huskies. She suspects her Huskies of mystical alchemy with their joyous liberation of her muse and other magical beings for her inspiration. She loves to sleep, to watch her interesting dreams, some of which are now finding new life in written form.

Novels

Red Slaves Series

Planned as a trilogy, the first two books have been released under the Katarr Kanticles Press imprint in 2012 and 2013.

They follow Chicago researcher Anne Crosby as she tries to resolve the mystery behind a group of amnesiacs in Moscow, Russia, soon after the fall of the Soviet Union.

Dementional

Speculative fiction exploring what could happen to a scientist who loses a Higgs Boson.

Released by Katarr Kanticles Press in August 2012.

Katarr Kanticles Press
<http://katarrkanticlespress.com/>

Short-Form Fiction

Angel Mine

A serial rapist murderer is on the prowl; Halloween brings other monsters to his doorstep. Short story of 4,512 words.

Released by Katarr Kanticles Press in October 2012.

Wytchfire

Will she remember soon enough to save herself? Will she transform enough to save her planet? Novelette of 9,000 words.

Released by Katarr Kanticles Press June 2013.

